Leonard F. Meares' 73 Big Jim western novels as example of changing names and coordinated publishing

ANDERS N. NILSSON, Nordmaling, Sweden

[Version 8 December 2025]

The extremely prolific Australian author Leonard F. Meares (1921-1993) was best known for his Larry & Stretch series of 451 western novels, that in Scandinavia did get extremely popular, especially in the 1970's (Nilsson 2025). Under the Marshall Grover pseudonym, Meares also wrote the Big Jim series, including 73 novels, and showing many similarities with his Larry & Stretch series (in Scandinavia known as Bill & Ben). The publication of both series in Scandinavia was characterized by the same coordination driven by the Danish Winther publisher. From the start, the Big Jim stories had, just like Larry & Stretch, a comic streak combined with plenty of violent action, often centered at some complex mystery plot linked to murder or robbery, to be solved by the heroes. Whereas the two Texans just drifted from one small town to another, Big Jim followed his brother's murderer Jenner in his tracks, only to get involved in local conflicts wherever he went. Just like Larry & Stretch, Big Jim was a master in using his fists and guns, always helping the good people to overcome the baddies, no matter how many or how influential they were. And like the two Texans, Big Jim was not much for romancing, although frequently the women he met got soft on him. In the later novels, after Jenner got killed, Jim did get a sweetheart in Mary Breen of Cornerstone. Although a few kisses were exchanged, marriage stayed a future possibility only.

The same cover art by Walter Stackpole on Australian Cougar Western #551, Swedish Big Jim #21, and Danish Big Jim #20. The later two are both translations of the Big Jim novel Kid Daybreak.

Starting 1970 with his 400th novel San Saba Blockade, Meares had Big Jim showing up in Larry & Stretch novels for every new hundred of novels he got published: the 500th Last stage to Delarno in 1978, the 600th Reunion in Slade City in 1983, and the 700th One Hell of a Showdown in 1991 (Whitehead 1991). Same thing also happened in Four Aces and the Knave from 1979. Moreoever, the character Vincent "Doc" Beaumont, a medical doctor preferring poker, is part of both series of novels.

From Cleveland to Horwitz

The Big Jim series got started in 1964 in Cleveland publishing's Cougar Western series #493 entitled The night McLennan Died. Cleveland published 24 Big Jim titles in this series, the last one in 1966 in #538 entitled Satan Pulled the Trigger. When in 1967 Meares moved to Horwitz Grahame and their Scripts label, the first Big Jim novel published was Diablo's Shadow. In 1968 and 1969 a set of 16 Nevada Jim Gage, new name of Big Jim Rand, novels were published by Bantam in the US, with the author name changed to Marshall McCoy. The first three of these novels had already been published in Australia by Scripts as Big Jim westerns, now re-edited by Bantam. The following 13 novels were published in the US and Canada by Bantam, and by Horwitz in Australia, all using the same cover layout with the famous Bama paintings.

During the Bantam period, the Nevada Jim series underwent a transformation after Jenner is finally killed in Justice for Jenner. Jim then travels to Nevada where he settles on his own horse ranch near the small town of Cornerstone. Instead of new towns with new characters in each new story, Cornerstone develops a set of standing characters with subsequent additions, listed below:

Ackroyd, Wes: Western Union man
Ahern, Phil: Bristow ranch hand [from The willing target]
Bardsley, Zeke: Starret ranch-hand [from Day of vengeance]
Betz, Saul: newspaper owner
Breen, May: diner keeper
Bristow, Blanche: Sam's wife [from The willing target]
Bristow, Sam: rancher [from The willing target]
Bristow, Trina: Sam's daughter [from The willing target]
Collet, Toby: stable hand [from Dead man's bluff]
Courtney, Ben: sheriff
Crisp, Melvin: barber
Dane, Rick: deputy [from Hangrope fever]
Dowell, Ma: Jim's cook [from Carson's bonanza]
Dowell, Pa: Jim's ranch-hand [from Carson's bonanza]
Farno, Lil: saloon girl [from Hangrope fever]
Finnigan, Liam: saloon keeper
Green, Pop: drunkard
Hammersmith, Phoebe: old woman [from Day of vengeance]
Hurst, Curly: guard Lorand saloon
Kingold, Tom: stagecoach station manager [from Rogue trail]
Kipp, Lucille: Roy's wife [from Dead man's bluff]
Kipp, Roy: draper's shop keeper [from Dead man's bluff]
Krauss, Dobie: Starret ranch-hand [from Killer bait]
Kyle, Parry: hotel owner
Kyle, Sadie: Parry's wife
Latham, Abby: school teacher [from Day of vengeance]
Leckie, Dan "Doc": doctor
Leckie, Melissa: Dan's wife [from Killer bait as M Harlan]
Lorand, Duke: saloon keeper [from Hangrope fever]
Malloy, Clinton: Jim's ranch-hand [from Guns of greed; died in Day of vengeance]
McHenry, David: iron store keeper [from Guns of greed]
McLaren, Eli: priest [from Day of vengeance]
McManus, Philip: banker [from Danger rode drag]
Peck, Gordy: undertaker
Quine, Lew: May's cook
Reese, Carl: saddler
Reese, Helga: Carl's wife [died in Day of vengence]
Rossiter, Mitch: stable keeper [from Dead man's bluff]

Rudge, Micah: registrator
Shelborn, Art: gunsmith [from Dead man's bluff]
Shelborn, Lottie: Art's sister [from The decoy trail]
Starret, Adam: rancher
Tedrow, Bess: Oliver's wife
Tedrow, Griff: blacksmith
Tedrow, Oliver: city major

Although there is a slight overlap, one can think of the book series as having a first half with Big Jim Rand travelling from town to town in his hunt for Jenner together with his comic sidekick Benito Espina. Then the series transforms to Nevada Jim, rooted at his horse farm near Cornerstone, interacting with a whole set of recurrent town citizens plus his own small ranch crew. In this second half of the series, either crooks show up in Cornerstone or Jim travels to other places in order to deliver horses he has sold and gets involved in other people's conflicts.

After the Bantam interlude, Horwitz stuck to Nevada Jim as the name of the hero, but returned to Marshall Grover as author name. A new phenomenon, first seen in 1969, was that new titles were published in translation in Scandinavia, before they had been published in English. First out were three titles, starting with Dead Man's Bluff, printed in Sweden in 1969, and in Australia as Nevada Jim Westerns the following year. As these titles in Scandinavia were included in the Big Jim series of books, it is a bit confusing that the poor editing did leave the name "Nevada Jim" scattered in the texts. Altogether seven Big Jim titles were published in Scandinavia before they were printed in Australia (Nilsson & Pettersen 2016).

In 1971 and 1972 the following five titles were published in translation in Scandinavia, never to be published in the original language: A Gun for 3 Minutes, Dynamite Route, Guns of the Godfathers, The Decoy Trail, and The Undefended. The same thing happened with eight Larry & Stretch stories, but that was after that Horwitz ended their paperback line in 1992 (Nilsson 2025). The only three Big Jim stories not published in Scandinavia were: 1,000 Dollar Target, Sundance Creek, and The Hour Before Disaster.

Studied material

The Swedish Big Jim editions were listed by Nilsson (2023), and book covers were here studied in my own collection. Cover scans and metadata from the Finnish books were found a Miikka Kivimäkis Internet page devoted to western paperbacks (Kivimäki 2025). Most of the information on Danish books were found at Gunnar Olsen's Internet site devoted to massmarket paperbacks, with the addition of cover scans received directly from him and Kai Nilsen. Finally, information on Norwegian books originated from the Serieantikvariatet site (2025), and was also supplemented with the help of Jan Ole Braathen. Data on the Australian editions follow Whitehead (1991), and my list of Meares' western novels including printing years and book numbers (Nilsson, unpubl.). Thanks also to David Whitehead for sending me some Big Jim novels.

Lists of series and editions

Big Jim or Nevada Jim editions were found in 25 different series from nine countries (Table 1). Most of the observed editions of the 73 Big Jim or Nevada Jim titles found are listed in Appendix 1. As only partly known by me, most Australian reprint editions were excluded from the list.

Titles in reading order

The reading order suggested in Appendix 2 in most cases matches publication order, although primarily based on the contents of the stories. Finding the correct order gets more difficult when titles are being published parallell in different regions, and translated editions appear before those in the original language. The Bantam renaming of Big Jim to Nevada Jim Gage, and Marshall Grover to Marshall McCoy also added to the confusion. In Scandinavia, titles published outside the Big Jim series used other names on the hero, and sometimes also most of the other characters.

Nordic title sequence

The title sequence of the Nordic Big Jim paperback series does not strictly follow the here suggested reading order of the 73 novels (Table 2). This may have resulted in logical errors for those reading books in a national order of publication. One example is the Norwegian books #64-65 in which Big Jim is still hunting Jenner, although the murderer ended his days already in book #33. The first book in the series, The Night McLellan Died, in which the series was introduced, was delayed in all four countries and did in Finland appear as the 13th book. In spite of a general pattern of a tendency towards synchronization among countries,

Table 2. Title sequence of Big Jim paperback series in four Nordic countries in relation to the here suggested reading order. In Finland, the two series Iso Jim and Kansas are here combined, and in the other three countries books from other series are added at the end. The columns Year and Country refer to first publication of title. Country codes: (DK) Denmark, (FI) Finland, (NO) Norway, (SE) Sweden.

there are many examples of individual titles that were seriously delayed. The third book in the reading sequence Meet Me in Moredo is the 2nd Swedish book, but the 62th in the Danish sequence. Some titles, like Devil's Legend, were about equally delayed in all four countries. Overall, the lower annual rate of new titles in Finland opened up for later titles in the reading order to be published much earlier than in the other three countries, like the Finnish 24th to 26th books, i.e Kansas books #12-14.

Cover art

The Nordic Big Jim paperback series primarily used cover art by Walter Stackpole from Cleveland's many western series (Appendix 3, Table 3). I have so far found matches with covers from the following series: Bison between #386 & #526, Bobcat #353, Cleveland between #1003 & #1249, Cougar between #505 & #660, and High Brand Western #237. When first used in Australia, these paintings were made to match a specific scene in the book. In Scandinavia, they were more randomly combined with the stories. Besides the Stackpole paintings, the Big Jim books in Norway and Sweden also used five Spanish paintings each. From book #29, the Finnish Kansas series used the same photo session stills as found on the Swedish re-run of the Big Jim series. Most Stackpole paintings were combined with the same stories in Denmark, Sweden and Norway, but not so in Finland. The Finnish lack of synchronization was seemingly caused by their delayed publication of many titles.

Big Jim – a hero with many names

James Carey Rand was from the start the real name of Big Jim, first changed to Nevada Jim Gage in the Bantam editions 1968. This new name stuck also in Australia, and used in all new Horwitz titles after the Bantam cooperation was over. In Finland, Big Jim was translated to Finnish as Iso Jim, which also was the serial name of the 12 first books. The series was then renamed to Kansas, starting again from book #1, with the hero's moniker changed to Kansas Tom. The reason for this name change remains unknown.

In Denmark, Norway, and Sweden, after the ending of the Big Jim series, a few more titles were published in some mixed series of western paperbacks. All except two of the Swedish books used Marshall McCoy as author name instead of Marshall Grover. In all of the 12 Danish books seen, the single Norwegian, and four of the six Swedish books, the name of the hero was replaced with new names, unique to each title but with coordination among countries.

Moreover, in the Danish and Swedish translations of Hartigan, most of the standing characters of Cornerstone had their names replaced, and also the town name was changed:

Cornerstone = Stanford
Ben Courtney = Ben Carter
Dewey Hollis = Diana Hill [daughter to Sam & Nancy]
Doc Leckie = dr Davis
Finnigan = Finney
Gordy Peck = Pete Gordon
Lew Quine = Les Quinn
Ma Dowell = Nancy Hill
May Breen = June Quinn
Melissa Leckie = Vanessa Davis
Oliver Tedrow = Olwin
Pa Dowell = Sam Hill
Parry Kyle = George Moran
Rick Dane = Dick Dane

Seems the Winther publisher may have had a problem with the rights to publish these titles, although the author's name and the copyright information on the title page was still exposed. Or maybe they only wanted the titles to appear as stand-alones, and not part of a series. With more of the involved books available, also the originals, this rare phenomenon would surely be worth a closer study.
